Increasing Operational Efficiency

This spring, the Iowa Alcoholic Beverages Division is implementing Robocom, a warehouse management system, to enhance operational efficiency. The goal is to improve customer service by planning for and implementing an internet-based order entry system and inventory management system.

I am pleased and excited about our partnership with Robocom. Their proven solutions have been successfully implemented in several other alcohol control jurisdictions in both the United States and Canada. Staff conducted a thorough review of the options and alternatives and I am confident that we made the right decision.

Inventory Control

The warehouse management system will greatly improve inventory management by tracking stock on a pallet level, allowing for automatic inventory rotation and restocking. Robocom provides robust tools to help the Division achieve an even higher level of inventory accuracy. We will be able to more efficiently use existing warehouse storage space, which will allow for additional products to be carried, resulting in more customer choice.

Increased Labor Performance

The labor management system will allow the Division to manage every facet of labor performance, which will control and reduce employee labor cost by an estimated five percent. The system will increase warehouse productivity by using task interleaving. This will allow workers to switch from task to task, such as unloading, restocking, order fulfillment and inventory cycle counts, quickly and in the most efficient order.

Enhanced Order Entry

Entering orders will be less time consuming, no longer require manual entry of data by customer service team and result in an improved process. The Order Management System will allow for easy, remote entry of orders over the internet by licensees. Electronic Data Interchange (EDI) will be available for chain store customers with multiple locations to effectively view and track orders companywide. The online portal will be a one-stop shop for customers to get news, specials, announcements and more.

Customers will be able to sign in with their individual account number and password to place orders on their own schedule, any time, day or night until the order submission deadline. Orders can be progressively compiled throughout the week by saving progress and returning later to finish and submit. Customers will save time by setting up standard order templates, viewing order history and resubmitting standard orders.

The special order portal will make ordering products not regularly carried by the Division simple, quick and user-friendly. The inventory management system will utilize a searchable product database to easily find a specific product or browse available items. Additionally, customers will be able to check the status of their special orders at any time.

Implementation

Robocom will be rolling out this spring with full implementation by summer. During the testing period, the new and old order entry processes will be running parallel in order to ensure a smooth conversion to the new system. Live customer service is a top priority at the Division. Customers without internet access or who choose not to use this option, may continue to place orders by email, fax or phone.

At this time, I do not foresee the new system changing customers' order and delivery times, truck delivery routes or electronic funds transfers (EFT) for payment of orders. However, the Division is always looking for ways to enhance customer service and efficiency.

Conclusion

The proposed program, when executed, will allow the Division to deliver product more efficiently and with greater reliability, resulting in more dollars being transferred to the state's general fund. I am looking forward to seeing improved effectiveness of our order management system and efficiency of warehouse operations. Perhaps most importantly, I welcome the opportunity to improve our customer service and satisfaction.

Sincerely,

Rick Swizdor

Deputy Administrator

the OUTSIDE BUSINESS of the Iowa Smokefree Air Act

With summer just around the corner, licensees should remember that the Iowa Smokefree Air Act (ISAA) prohibits smoking in some outdoor areas of businesses. Smoking is prohibited in restaurants including all outdoor seating or serving areas. The ISAA does not regulate smoking in outdoor areas of bars, so long as food service is limited to prepackaged snack foods and commercially prepared foods that do not require assembly. If bars or restaurants provide entertainment (live band, comedian, etc.), the ISAA prohibits smoking in all outdoor areas where people can witness the entertainment. These areas include seating, standing room only, festival style seating or any area where people congregate to experience the entertainment.

WAREHOUSE LEAD WORKER

What are your job duties?

I am the lead worker in the warehouse so my main duty is to make sure things are getting done correctly and on time. I also do forklift training and help train new warehouse employees. I do whatever comes up on any given day: help out drivers, load trucks, run forklifts and working on routing packages to find the most efficient delivery schedule. I've even been known to help out in order entry!

What is your favorite part of your job?

I like that the primary function of my job is to help people, everyone from customers to management and other departments at the Division. I also enjoy that no two days are ever the same and there is a lot of variety in the jobs I do.

What do you like to do in your free time?

My wife and I love to be outdoors. We have a boat that we take out to the river or lake to go fishing. We also do a lot of traveling and camping. On our last big trip, we put over 8,000 miles on our Jeep and visited almost every state west of the Mississippi River except Alaska and Hawaii. We just drive, with no particular plan or destination. On that trip, we saw the Grand Canyon, Hoover Dam, Roswell, Carlsbad Caverns and Yellowstone. We also drove Highway 1 up the coast in California. Next time, we're going to go east. I'd like to get up into the New England area.

I have a good group of friends and we have guys' night out every week where we have a few beers or maybe some Captain Morgan, shoot pool and play darts. We also hunt pheasant, coyote and deer. I clean and process all my own game and like cooking, smoking, grilling and - the best part - eating the meat from our hunting outings.

I am a handyman-for-hire on the weekends, doing odd jobs like concrete and small motor repair.

Viva Tequila!

One challenge for tequila is expanding beyond its reputation as a spirit of shots and margaritas. . . . This includes getting the word out about the importance of 100 percent blue agave, promoting tequila as a sipping drink, highlighting the nuances of the spirit, and drawing comparisons with better understood categories, such as comparing a fine extra añejo with a quality whiskey.

FOR A SMOOTHER, FRESHER TASTE

ROCK'EM PUNCH SOCK'EM

CELEBRATIONS GALORE

In the coming months your customers will be hosting celebrations galore from Mother's Day brunches and engagement parties to wedding receptions. Help make their special times sparkle with champagne—in flutes, cocktail glasses, and punch cups!

Here are some drink recipes to serve large groups.

Mimosa Punch

- 2 (12-ounce) cans frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
- 2 quarts (8 cups) sparkling apple juice, apple cider, or ginger ale, chilled
- 3 (750-millileter) bottles (about 10 cups) champagne, chilled

Scoop the orange juice concentrate into a chilled punch bowl; stir to soften. Stir in the sparkling apple juice. Add the champagne (do not stir; the bubbles in the champagne will mix the ingredients).

Watermelon Champagne Punch

- Watermelon cubes and other fresh fruit of choice
- Maraschino cherries
- Mint leaves (optional)
- Water
- 15 cups cubed, seeded watermelon
- $\frac{3}{4}$ cup sugar

- 3 (750-millileter) bottles (about 10 cups) champagne, chilled

Arrange the watermelon cubes, other fresh fruit of choice, and mint leaves, if desired, in the bottom of an ice ring mold or other circular freezer-safe container. Carefully add just enough water to cover the fruit but not "float" it; freeze until firm. Add about an inch of water, freeze until firm; repeat adding water and freezing until the mold is full.

Puree the watermelon and sugar, in small batches, in a blender. Chill the pureed mixture.

When you are ready to prepare the punch, remove the mold from the freezer; either let it sit at room temperature for 15 to 20 minutes or place it in warm tap water for a few minutes. Invert the mold into a chilled punchbowl, and add the pureed watermelon mixture. Slowly add the champagne (do not stir; the bubbles will mix the ingredients).

The DEPOT Restaurant

THE CITY, MAN AND RESTAURANT WITH ENERGY

BILL HILLMAN OWNER

Story and Photos by Nicole Hartman and Tonya Dusold

Shenandoah, the “City with Energy,” is best known as the home of The Depot Restaurant since 1983. Bill Hillman, owner of The Depot, has plenty of spirit when it comes to managing his restaurant as well as being an active community member, among other things.

You won’t have a quiet and tire-some visit at The Depot as there is memorabilia from floor to ceiling that will keep you fascinated for hours. There are hundreds of photos, many autographed, that hang with years of history behind them. Many include the renowned Everly Brothers; the duo was rock and roll chart toppers in the ‘50s and ‘60s who grew up in Shenandoah. Numerous artifacts hang from the ceiling and walls, several coming from Hillman’s childhood, and others collected throughout the years.

Before you know it, your food will be served from the extensive menu consisting primarily of homestyle favorites. The Depot is inspired by family cooking that makes you feel at home while eating a dish from their breakfast, lunch, or dinner menus. Seasonal microbrews are also available, which Hillman brews at the restaurant, including wheat, India pale ale, stout and red ale. Hillman completely scratched the original recipe for his microbrews after becoming involved in the Iowa Brewers Guild to better perfect them and stay in competition with other members.

The Depot hasn’t always been so lucky; the first day they served breakfast in 1995, the building burnt down due to a kitchen fire. Unfortunately, the $20,000 worth of insurance was barely enough to haul away the wreckage. The next day, 100 good Samaritans showed up with shovels and wheelbarrows to help Hillman rebuild his business from the ground up. Thanks primarily to the unpaid volunteers, the roof was up in a single day and The Depot was partially open for business within a month.

It was only right that people from the community came together to help Hillman after all he volunteers for. He helped developed the Wabash Trace Nature Trail, a converted railroad from Council Bluffs to Blanchard which runs 63 miles with 74 bridges. He is a founding member of the Southwest Iowa Habitat for Humanity, the Everly Brothers Scholarship fund and The Dome Restoration Board. Hillman has received a KETV Putting People First Award, Wabash Trace Volunteer of the Year and Shenandoah Cornerstone Award.

Hillman is sure to keep The Depot a popular hang-out among the Shenandoah community as well as a frequent stop for celebrities and politicians such as President Obama and Governor Branstad. Live music from regional bands and karaoke nights keep locals and tourists coming back. With homestyle food, quality microbrews, local history and entertainment, The Depot is definitely a Shenandoah landmark with energy.

TEQUILA REMAINS ONE OF THE MORE DYNAMIC SPIRITS ON STORE SHELVES, WITH A WIDE RANGE OF OFFERINGS, FROM VALUE-PRICED TO ULTRA-PREMIUM EXPRESSIONS.

BY GREGG GLASER

As the economy has slowed over the past 18 months, so have sales of just about every spirits category, and tequila is no exception. Still, the overall category increased sales last year, though at a slower pace than in recent years, and suppliers have continued to energize the marketplace with new brands and expressions.

For years, tequila has been known for two things in the United States: as a drink done as shots and as the primary spirit in one of the most popular cocktails of all time, the margarita. But as drinking preferences have grown more sophisticated, suppliers have been importing a widening portfolio of aged and handcrafted tequilas for more than a decade now.

“Tequila is coming of age with interesting variations, and consumers are appreciating that,” says Jose Cuervo brand manager Doug Campbell. “They’re coming around to tequila as a spirit equal to other, more established spirits.”

Even where down, brand managers are bullish about the segment. “The consumer is back into home entertainment and wants quality ingredients to make better cocktails at home, says Pryce Greenow, Beam Global’s general manager of mixables.

Much of the growth and excitement in the tequila category has come from tequilas outside the top 10, with consumers exploring a wider range that includes the likes of the many 100 percent blue agave tequilas. A culture of experimentation and indulging in affordable luxury has helped fuel the interest, as has competitive prices on tequilas made from 100 percent blue agave; consumers often will opt for 100 percent blue agave expressions over mixtos when the difference in price is small. Good tequila, consumers are finding, generally can be less expensive than, say, a good cognac.

One challenge for tequila is expanding beyond its reputation as a spirit of shots and margaritas. While those obviously are important parts of overall tequila sales, moving the spirit up-market and growing appreciation for the category requires extensive consumer education. This includes getting the word out about the importance of 100 percent blue agave, promoting tequila as a sipping drink, highlighting the nuances of the spirit, and drawing comparisons with better understood categories, such as comparing a fine extra añejo with a quality whiskey.

The margarita has helped put tequila on the map in the United States. With new offerings, a push toward 100 percent blue agave, and a general increase in and appreciation of tequila, however, that map is being expanded.

New Ways To Enjoy Tequila

If you haven’t enjoyed tequila on its own, choose one of the aged (añejo) 100 percent blue agave brands, pour it into your favorite glass, add a squeeze of lime (but no salt), and savor the flavor. Try it chilled and on the rocks as well as straight to discover how you like it best.

In addition to margaritas and flavored margaritas, try some other mixed drinks that use tequila, including this luscious yet refreshing cocktail.

Agave Kiss

Melt a chunk of white chocolate, and use it to rim the cocktail glass before chilling it.

2-2½ ounces silver tequila
1-1½ ounces crème de cacao
1-1½ ounces heavy cream
1/2-1 ounce black raspberry or other flavored liqueur
Fresh raspberries or other fruit of choice

Fill a cocktail shaker half-full with fresh ice; add the tequila, crème de cacao, heavy cream, and liqueur. Shake vigorously, and strain into the prepared chilled serving glass. Garnish with fresh raspberries or other fruit.

Note: This excerpt is printed with permission from the July/August 2010 issue of StateWays—the Beverage Alcohol Merchandising Magazine for Control States.

Most of us would probably rather forget 2009, and though economists (and people still making money on Wall Street) tell us we're coming out of the "Great Recession," no one's breaking out the champagne yet. But you should be breaking out the rum.

Rum weathered the downturn fairly well, in fact. The top ten leading brands, which account for about 80 percent of category volume, gained close to 1 percent more in 2009. And the remaining 20 percent of rum producers grew nearly 6 percent [in 2009], for a total category gain of about 1.6 percent. Not bad, considering how tightly closed consumers have been keeping their wallets.

Interest in the category continues to grow, and producers are feeding that interest with product innovations and exciting programs. Rum, unlike perhaps any other spirits category, is really three categories in one, all of which cater to at least one or more consumer trends. It's as if rum's unique properties have enabled producers to hedge their bets and take advantage of (excuse the pun) whichever way the wind blows.

The bulk of rum volume comes from clear rum, where it competes with vodka and tequila as a versatile, mixable white spirit. Like vodka producers, rum distillers also have found gold in flavored versions of the base spirit.

Nearly overtaking traditional rum in volume, however, spiced rum has almost become a category in its own right in the past decade. Finally, aged and dark rums appeal to the same consumers who seek out single malt scotch, single barrel bourbon, Irish whiskey, fine cognac, and more recently, aged tequila. These above-premium rums are attracting consumers who are still willing to trade up for the unique qualities, heritage, and authenticity of products like these.

"Rum is very versatile and mixes well, and it can be served straight," says Tom Herbst, brand director for Captain Morgan. "People are probably dipping in and out of the white rum segment more. Sipping rums do well because people like the taste of rum and the nuances of those products. Spiced rum is in the middle; consumers love the taste of the rum itself and cocktails made with it."

Along with the broad variety within the category, rum on the whole also offers consumers a terrific value. "Consumers are now recognizing that great products don't necessarily have to come at great expense," says Brian Labuda, executive marketing manager and brands director Admiral Nelson's at Luxco.

Rum growth also is being fueled by the consumer cocktail craze. Mojitos continue to grow in popularity, and as mixologists keep experimenting with new flavors and fresh, exotic ingredients, the cocktail culture captures consumers' imagination.

The weather is warm. Your customers are spending more time relaxing and enjoying time with their friends and family. Summer is the perfect time to merchandise and sell rum.

Mojitos by the Pitcher

3/4 cup fresh mint leaves
Fresh ice
1 cup freshly squeezed lime juice
2/3 sugar syrup
1½-2 cups rum or flavored rum
3-4 cups club soda

In a heavy-bottomed glass, muddle (mash) the mint leaves. Fill a large pitcher about 1/3 full with fresh ice. Add the muddled mint leaves, lime juice, sugar syrup, and rum; stir well to mix. Add the club soda (do not stir; the bubbles in the soda will mix the ingredients). Add enough ice to fill the pitcher; serve over ice in chilled or frosted glasses.

 1/2 ounce triple sec or other orange-flavored liqueur
 1/2 ounce sour mix
 Berries or pieces of fresh fruit for garnish

Put the ice in a heavy-duty blender or drink mixer, and add the remaining ingredients except the garnish. Blend until slushy but still firm; pour the mixed drink into the prepared serving glass. Garnish with the berries or fresh fruit.

LEGALLY SPEAKING

SIZZLING SUMMER

The hats and mittens are back in storage and it's nearly time to break out the sunscreen and flip flops. After a long, cold winter Iowans want to get out and play in the sunshine. Summer brings beer gardens, music festivals and athletic events, all of which can affect your liquor license.

Q How do I temporarily move my license to a different premises for a one-day festival?

A To temporarily move a license to another location, complete a transfer application which can be found at <https://eLicensing.IowaABD.com>. The application will need city council or board approval and must be endorsed by your dram shop insurance provider. Temporary transfers are for a minimum of 24 hours and the original premises cannot serve alcohol during that period. Licenses can only be transferred within the same local authority.

Q How can I operate a temporary beer garden at a separate location, while serving alcohol at my regular business at the same time?

A If you want to serve alcohol in a separate location while still serving at your licensed premises, you need to obtain a five-day license for the temporary premises. You must apply online at <https://eLicensing.IowaABD.com> to obtain a temporary license that is completely separate from your current license. If you want to hold an outdoor event at the same premises as your licensed establishment, you simply need to obtain an outdoor service privilege. For more information, see the next question regarding patios.

Q What do I need to do in order to serve alcohol outside on a patio or in a beer garden?

A You may not sell or serve any alcoholic beverages in an outdoor area until you have added an outdoor service privilege to your license. An outdoor service privilege may be added to your existing license at any time by completing the application online at <https://eLicensing.IowaABD.com>. The application will need to be approved by both the local authority and your dram shop insurance provider. The outdoor area must be attached to the current licensed premise and distinguishable by a fence or other barrier. Be sure to check with your local authority to ensure you are following all city ordinances. Outdoor service areas are considered extensions of the existing licensed premises and are not stand-alone licenses. The privilege expires with the license and must be renewed annually.

Q Can I serve spirits in mini (50ml) bottles on my golf course?

A Yes. In order for it to be considered serving a drink rather than selling a bottle, the seal must be broken by an employee. You may still provide the customer with the cap so they can close the bottle while moving about the course.
